DIXON MAN IS IN TROUBLE IN
DEKALB COUNTYHugh McKay Held By Of-

Of Allegations

BULLETIN

(Telegraph Special Service)

DeKalb, July 1.—Hugh McKay II, Dixon, was held to the September term of the DeKalb county grand jury shortly before noon today under bonds of $1,000 on a charge of reckless driving, when arraigned before Justice Z. B. Mitchell at Sycamore. Unable to furnish the amount of the bond, McKay was remanded to the county jail.

In addition to the reckless driving charge, the Dixonite faces indictment on charges of resisting an officer, leaving the scene of an accident and of assault with a deadly weapon, the latter pertaining to the recent ruling of the Supreme Court which held that an automobile was a deadly weapon.

(Telegraph Special Service)

DeKalb, July 1.—Hugh McKay, age about 40 and a resident of Dixon, was arrested last night about midnight. As time went on charges against McKay piled up and today he was to be brought up for a preliminary hearing with indications being that he is to be bound over to the grand jury. McKay was first arrested on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident without first giving his name and the license number of his automobile. As time went on a charge of possession and transportation of liquor was added against him. A little later he was charged with walking out of the police station without first consulting an officer. There may be one other charge, that for forcibly resisting arrest.

His DeKalb Car
Shortly before midnight last night Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of this city were driving toward DeKalb, from the west. Just before they reached the western outskirts, a car, also east bound, went by them and cut in, striking a front fender on the DeKalb car and nearly forcing it into the ditch. Skillful driving on Thompson's part was all that prevented an accident.

The driver of the other car slowed down for a second or two and then sped up his automobile. Thompson gave chase and the fleeing car turned north on Normal Road, followed by Thompson. Reaching the College Avenue intersection of Normal Road the fleeing auto turned west again. College Avenue is a dead street to the west and the car stopped, with Thompson's car directly behind it.

Thompson got in the car and brought the man, who gave his name as Hugh McKay, to the city jail, Mrs. Thompson in the meantime bringing Mr. Thompson's car and calling the police. Just as the police started out of the jail, Thompson, accompanied by McKay and another Dixonite, George Miller, walked in.

McKay was told to sit down and Thompson went home. Miller was held but a short time. McKay was told he was under arrest on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident without making known his license number and name. Sergeant W. J. Conidine stepped out of the jail to summon a judge so McKay could be given a hearing. State Patrol Officer O. N. Larson, also in the jail, went into the office to prepare the warrant. Another officer in the jail was in the same room in which McKay was sitting.

Just Walks Away
As Larson walked into his office McKay got up and walked out the same door. The officer in the jail thought that McKay was following Larson and paid little attention to the man's actions.

When Larson returned, a few minutes later, he asked where McKay had gone. Unable to secure any information, a search was begun. Larson, accompanied by Officer John Wilson, started east. Near Fifth street they saw McKay walking down the street. He was stopped and told to get into the car. McKay had other notions, however, and in a scuffle which ensued Officer Wilson was scratched on the face. McKay was returned to the jail and additional charges of possession and transportation of liquor were filed against him. A search of his car disclosed a bottle of liquor, it is said.

Dixon authorities today said that McKay has often been in trouble in that community, having served a term at Vandalia following a conviction on a charge of stealing chickens. A son, aged nineteen, is now at Vandalia, the Dixon police stated.

Conferees Adopt
Hoover Proposal

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Congressional conferees on the unemployment relief bill agreed today to an administration proposal to eliminate from the measure the provision for a special bond issue.

Chairman Norbeck of the Senate conferees, in announcing the decision, said it resulted in cutting the controversial public works program carried in the bill from $500,000,000 to about $300,000,000.

The decision was reached after a long conference with Secretary Mills who urged that the Treasury be allowed to select its own method of financing the public works program.

After the conference, Mills refused to say whether President Hoover would sign the revised bill.

8 DEPARTMENTS
OF GOVERNMENT
WITHOUT FUNDSA Lagging Congress Is Responsible For Their Condition

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Nearly $3,000,000,000 in the hole, the federal government today began a new financial year with eight big departments legally penniless because of a lagging Congress.

Four annual appropriation bills that should have been law at midnight last night were caught, along with relief, in legislative machinery that promised to prevent adjournment of Congress until well into next week.

The last figures available before the new fiscal year began showed Uncle Sam with a $2,888,035,008 deficit, the biggest of any nation in peace times. Forecasts were that the final total would be considerably nearer $3,000,000,000.

Eight Without Funds

The eight departments that legally ran out of funds with the expiration of the old year were: State, Justice, Commerce, Labor, Treasury, Post Office, Agriculture and War. J. C. Roop, Director of the Budget, was not gravely concerned about the temporary lack of funds, saying that if the appropriations bills were law by next pay day everybody would be satisfied.

Congressional leaders predicted that before adjournment today all departments save War would have their allotments at the White House. Conferees still were at odds over a provision in the War bill to force the retirement of 2000 Army officers.

Coupled with the knowledge that the deficit would be nearly $3,000,000,000 for 1932, officials drew cheer as to 1933 possibilities from numerous things, including the $1,118,500,000 new tax law, the $150,000,000 economy bill, reductions of several hundreds millions in appropriations. They anticipated a "balanced budget" on June 30, 1933.

The government ended the fiscal year last night with a $2,888,035,008 deficit, compared with one of $903,000,000 for 1931.

Gross Debt Increased
In making the announcement today, Secretary Mills of the Treasury said total receipts for the year amounted to $2,121,000,000, a decline of $1,196,000,000 from 1931, while expenditures were $5,006,000,000, a gain of $786,000,000 over the previous year.

The increase Mills said, may be accounted for by expanded governmental construction activities and payments under the settlement of War Claims Act, the postal deficiency, and payment for the capital stock of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Federal Land Banks.

Mills said that retirements of United States obligations to meet sinking fund requirements chargeable against ordinary receipts total $412,000,000, so that the deficit, exclusive of debt retirement, amounted to $2,476,000,000.

The total gross debt outstanding was increased by $2,686,000,000 during the year.

POLO FARMER
DROPPED DEAD
AT HIS LABORSCalvin Ports Victim
Of Heart Attack At Home Last Eve

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, July 1.—Calvin Ports, prominent Ogle county farmer, dropped dead at his home west of Polo about 7 o'clock last evening while attending to chores. He had returned from a field where he was engaged in plowing corn and unhitched the team, the horses entering the barn. He followed and a short time later, his sister, Mrs. Etta Boyer, who has kept house for him since the death of his wife, observed the team coming out of the barn. When she went to investigate she found him lying on the floor of the building in an unconscious condition. A physician was summoned and he was removed to the house, where he passed away. A heart attack was held to be the cause of his sudden passing.

Mr. Ports was born December 31, 1866 on a farm west of Polo. He was united in marriage to Annie Williams, April 5, 1892 who preceded him in death, March 27, 1931. He is survived by a son, Roy; four sisters Mrs. Etta Boyer with whom he made his home, Mrs. Ida Williams of Aurora, Mrs. Blanche Seiners of Forreston, Mrs. Maude Elser of Polo and five brothers, Edward and Thomas of Sterling, Leslie of Polo, Harry and Otto of Fresno, Cal. Funeral services will be conducted from the home Sunday afternoon. Rev. N. E. Royer, pastor of the U. P. Brick church officiating and with interment in the South Elkhorn cemetery.

WORK ON PAW
PAW, SHABONA
SPURS GOES ONVillage Of Lee Wants
Connection With Paved Highway

The Central Engineering Company of Davenport, Iowa, has started laying the 18-foot concrete slab on route 71 in the southeast end of the county, which will pave the gap from state highway route 70 east to Shabona. About 600 feet of the slab had been poured last evening, the mixers being stationed in Lee county and the improvement starting from the junction with route 70 and extending eastward. The material camp has been established at Shabona.

The grading work for the remainder of the Paw Paw spur is being completed and the heavier grades are being watered today to bring about an early settlement of the fills. The culvert work will be finished this week and it is expected that pouring the ten-foot slab will start from the intersection with the new route 71 highway and continue south connecting with that section of the spur which was constructed last season.

The village of Lee in the extreme east end of the county, part of which is in DeKalb county, has started a movement asking to be connected with the state route 71 by a spur to be constructed under the gas tax refund program. The project involves two and one-half miles of highway running south of the village on the county line road. A meeting of the road and bridge committees of Lee and DeKalb counties will be held in a few days to discuss the possibility of joint construction of such a highway.

State Rests Today
In Curtis' Trial

Flemington, N. J. July 1.—(AP)—The state rested its case today in the trial of John Hughes Curtis for hindering capture of the kidnap-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

The prosecution rested as soon as court convened after the lunch adjournment. Most of the morning session was occupied with the testimony of Police Inspector Harry Walsh, who told of obtaining from Curtis the confession that all his alleged negotiations with kidnapers of the murdered baby were imaginary. This confession has been repudiated.

As soon as the state rested the defense moved for a directed verdict of acquittal on the ground that no crime was charged in the indictment.

President Signs
Ind. Offices Bill

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—President Hoover today signed without comment the $982,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill, under which the expenses of his own office and the White House must be drastically reduced.

The Chief Executive must reduce his traveling expenses from $25,000 to $20,000 and only $35,000 will be allowed for contingent expenses, a reduction of $8,500. A cut of $17,000 was approved for upkeep of the Executive Mansion and grounds, which allows $125,000 for that purpose.

Two Brothers Are

Kelthsburg, Ill. July 1.—(AP)—Frederick Anderson, 18, and William Anderson, 16, brothers, were killed by lightning during a storm last night.

The bodies were found at 6:30 this morning in a field on the Charles Winston farm, three miles northeast of here.

The brothers had been visiting friends early in the evening and had stopped at the Winston farm. They were going through a field to the home of their grandparents when the bolt struck them.

HOW LONG WILL
ILLINOIS STICK
TO CHICAGO MAN?State's Vote When And If Break Comes, Is An Uncertainty

By R. H. HIPPELHAUSER
Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—The Illinois vote was an uncertainty today in the Democratic national convention.

The paramount question seemed to be: How long will the Cermak forces in Chicago and Cook county remain with Melvin Traynor?

On the first three ballots, started with the peep of dawn today, Illinois held steadily with this distribution:

Traynor 40 1-4.
Franklin D. Roosevelt 15 1-4.
Alfred E. Smith 2 1-4.
John N. Garner 1-4.

At adjournment until 8:30 P. M. no plans had been made for a caucus of the delegation and no poll was expected until tonight's session—which again promises to run through the night.

Ritchie Has Strength
Although he received none of Illinois' 60 votes, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland had strength in the delegation and it was thought that the break, when and if it comes, will swing some votes his way.

Frank Scofield, Texas delegate and manager of the Traynor forces said the Cermak alliance had promised to stick by until the frost comes.

From Cermak there was no comment. His associates, too, had nothing to say, contrary to past custom.

Traynor deserted the stadium early but a few hours after he was placed in nomination by Michael Igoe, retiring National Committeeman and Democratic leader of the legislature. That was at 11 P. M.

Vienna Socialists
Break Up A Dance

Vienna, July 1.—(AP)—A crowd of National Socialists, shouting "Germany, awake!" invaded a dance at the International Country Club near here today, demolishing the furniture and attacking the guests, among whom were the Rumanian and Argentine ministers and the Italian military attache.

Before the police arrived the raiders had vanished into the woods from whence they came.

Eye-witnesses said the Rumanian minister was pushed off a veranda and the Italian military attache was hit over the head and slightly injured.

Columbus, O., July 1.—(P)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart, Putnam flying from Newark, N. J., to Los Angeles, took off from Port Columbus at 12:42 P. M. after a stop for refueling.

Accompanied by her husband, George Putnam, New York publisher, and the latter's son, David, the trans-oceanic flyer was detained here by heavy rain which began falling after she had landed to refuel. They arrived here at 10:43 A. M.

Putnam said they had made no plans for their flight, adding that they would proceed leisurely, stopping if unfavorable weather prevailed.

BISHOP CANNON
AGAIN TO LEAD
SOUTH'S REVOLTTurns Back On Democratic Party For A Second Time

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—With bitter words upon his lips, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., turned his back once again today upon the Democratic party, calling for repudiation in the south of the leadership which has espoused repeal, promising the dries will war without compromise.

His sentences rang with echoes of the call the Bishop sent out, right after the 1928 Democratic convention at Houston, gathering the prohibition leaders to chart a course against Alfred E. Smith. That led to the rending apart of the solid south, as under Cannon leadership, Virginia and North Carolina went for Hoover, along with Florida and Texas.

Last night he announced: "Representatives of a large majority of the people of the nation who believe and insist that the eighteenth amendment remain unchanged, will shortly meet in conference and will determine what they consider to be the best method of procedure."

He set this meeting up against both national conventions, saying both were largely made up of delegates picked by political leaders, but no further reference to the Republicans was made. But he asserted: "It goes without saying that there is not the slightest idea of yielding to this present day whiskey rebellion against the 18th amendment. The war with the traffic in sible conflict. These are simply battles in the war, in which there will be no retreat, no surrender, no compromise."

Two Days Racing
Meet Is Announced

Members of the Lee County Fair Association have decided to hold a two-day harness meet this fall in lieu of the annual county fair which has been called off for this year at least. The program this fall will be known as the Amboy Community Derby Days and will be held on August 17 and 18. The race program will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday with Friday being devoted entirely to the Boys' and Girls' 4-H clubs of the county.

It is expected that with the discontinuance of several county fairs throughout the state this season the Amboy track, with its past reputation, will attract a large field of horses in the various events and it is quite possible that running races will also be included in the bill.

Senator Nye Had Overwhelming Vote

Fargo, N. D., July 1.—(AP)—United States Senator Gerald P. Nye won an overwhelming victory for the Republican renomination for Senator in Wednesday's North Dakota primary election.

Nye, backed by the Nonpartisan League faction of the Republican party, ran up a two to one margin over his opponent, Gov. George F. Shafer. With more than two thirds of the returns in, Nye had 100,000 votes and Shafer 49,737.

Along with Nye, the entire Republican ticket, endorsed by the Nonpartisan League won nominations. The Leaguers ousted every "regular" republican official and held a decisive upper hand in the nominees for the state legislature.

On The Side At Democratic Nat.
Convention Today

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—The sunligh, streaming in the eastern windows of Chicago Stadium this morning upon the balloting Democratic national convention repeated for the party an experience of 20 years ago.

It was at Baltimore in 1912 that the Democrats last sat out the night. That was the session in which Champ Clark attained a majority of the vote only to lose in the end to Woodrow Wilson.

In 1914's celebrated Madison Square Garden there were late night and early morning sessions galore, but never did the sun rise on the delegates at work.

HOOVER INTERESTED

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—President Hoover showed an active interest early today in the balloting at the Chi. go convention to select the man who will oppose him in the coming presidential race.

Radios on the lower floors of the Executive Mansion were turned on so the Chief Executive and members of his medicine ball cabinet could listen as they sat at an open air table on the south lawn to enjoy a breakfast of fruit and coffee.

The President and his fellow medicine ball players listened closely to the second ballot, but adjourned their informal session before the third ballot was completed. The President was informed later, however, of its outcome.

'LATE AS USUAL'

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—Mayor "Jimmy" Walker of New York, who has been directed by Gov. Roosevelt to defend charges from the Seabury investigation, early today cast his vote for Al Smith for the Democratic nomination for President.

Walker was not present when the poll of New York delegates was taken. His alternate, likewise, was not there. The vote was passed.

Near the end of the poll the mayor appeared on the floor and addressed personally to cast his vote.

The chair acquiesced, relating that the Mayor's alternate had not voted.

"I cast my vote for Alfred E. Smith," said the executive, as applause came from the convention floor.

"Late as usual," echoed the radio announcer.

IN NICK OF TIME

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—Radio and a fast moving taxicab saved a serious break in the Roosevelt ranks on the third ballot on the presidency today with Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi the hero.

Informed of the decision of the Roosevelt leaders to adjourn after the second ballot, the Senator hied himself back to his hotel, three miles from the stadium, for some sleep.

It was just a hunch that led Pat to turn on the radio as he pulled out of his socks. To his amazement the first words to boom from the radio were "Mississippi passes."

The Mississippi delegation is split 104 to 91 on Roosevelt. This majority of one forces all votes for Roosevelt under the unit rule. Harrison is backing Roosevelt.

The socks came back on in a hurry and a wild taxi ride back to the stadium permitted Harrison to get his vote in before conclusion of the roll call and keep Mississippi for Roosevelt. The 94 votes are friendly to Newton D. Baker, of Ohio.

GARNER UNRUFFLED

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—The stormy politics of a Democratic national convention found Speaker John N. Garner pursuing an unruffled work day routine.

Mrs. Garner, wife and secretary of the presidential candidate who gained 11 votes on the third ballot—ubineba vaffami Rnmr:G:arncme lot, today gave this account of how the Speaker spent the hours of the night that were occupied with speeches and voting at Chicago:

"Mr. Garner left his office last night at half past six. We dined at the hotel at seven.

"After reading the evening papers, Mr. Garner retired at half past nine. We have no radio in our room and telephone calls are not allowed to disturb us after 6 o'clock.

"Mr. Garner got up this morning at 6 o'clock as usual, ate breakfast and reached the Capitol just after seven. Then he read the morning papers and started on his correspondence."

Mrs. Garner said the Speaker liked complete quiet after working hours and had not listened to radio broadcasts of the convention proceedings.

BULLETIN

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—A combined caucus of the Texas and California delegations was called for six P. M. today by State Sen. Woodul of Texas, one of the Garner leaders.

The Texas and California votes 90 strong, were pledged to Speaker Garner for the presidency, and were so cast on the first three ballots early today.

There has been considerable discussion of the possibilities of a Roosevelt-Garner ticket, but it has been without official countenance and all rumors of a trade have been promptly denied.

These ninety votes commanded by Garner would give Roosevelt two more votes than the 770 needed to nominate if they should be changed to his column. The Roosevelt total on the last ballot was 682 79/100.

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—The taut lines set by eight contenders for the presidential nomination strained mightily today to hold Franklin D. Roosevelt back from the Democratic conventions two-thirds majority.

Ever redoubled from the sleepless hours that drove the heat-harassed convention through the night to a three-ballot deadlock at daylight leaders of the contending factions set about bolstering their lines against the Roosevelt attack.

A joint caucus was called of the Texas and California delegations whose 90 votes are pledged to Speaker Garner. So close did Gov. Roosevelt come to the needed 770 votes on the last ballot this morning that this one block of votes would put him across, but there was indication the Garner leaders were not ready to swing their strength to the New York Governor.

Leaders Seek Sleep

During most of the day the headquarters of the various candidates were deserted as the leaders sought to gain a little sleep before plunging anew into the strain of the convention this evening. In the early afternoon

CADENCE

I am in love with lovely things;
A crimson rose the ecstasy
Of April's first white flowering tree.
A mocking bird's gold melody.
I am in love with lovely things.

The silence of the sun-drenched hills.
The golden lamps of daffodils.
A lilac bush where fragrance spills.
The velvet hush of fallen snow.
A still, dark night pierced by the glow
Of amber stars in row on row.

A mother moulding human clay
To forms of loveliness each day.
Bright, happy children at their play.

I am in love with lovely things;
The curving beauty of the sea,
Where dashing waves go mad with glee,
Vocal with song and poetry.
I am in love with lovely things.

Hollywood, July 1—(AP)—Friends of Ruth Chatterton, stage and screen actress, and her husband Ralph Forbes, actor, said today her departure on a trip to Europe a month ago marked a parting of the ways for the couple.

The friends denied that Miss Chatterton will sue for divorce while she is in Paris, France.

PAJAMAS HAVE SMART RIVALS IN NEW BEACH DRESSES

Vogue for Trousered Chic Continues, But Paris Adds Variety to Costumes for Sun-bathers

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

Paris, July 1 — Pajamas, this season, are going to be worn on the beach, but not any places else. Fashion creators all agree that they are most practical and convenient garments for such things as lounging, yatching and certain beach games, but for nothing else. They certainly never meant women to wear them indiscriminately and at all hours of the day (and night) and their very popularity was sufficient to set the couturiers working on another idea. Hence, the beach ap:ons, divided skirts and other novelties that are being offered.

Pajamas are the most logical garment for the beach. The day of the sunbath and front is over though. If you want to have a sunbath, you just slip on your trousers and keep your swimming suit on.

Worth's tricolor combination is seen to advantage in a pajama of heavy silk. The tricolor idea is further carried out in a triple belt made of heavy silk cord, held at intervals with navy and red, silk to hold the cords together. He also uses crepe weaves for "ounging suits with unusual touches at the belt or in the form of a scarf collar.

Maggy Rouff has a delightful beach dress in her collection that has proved very successful. The skirt of white cotton diagonal is divided, but this is only noticeable when the wearer walks as it is very generously pleated. A little bolero jacket buttons on to the skirt over a sweater blouse of red band-knit wool.

should be too ropey Bananas however, are more wholesome a little too ripe than green.

Sponge cake is very innocuous, and so are cookies. I do not believe I should put in any pie at all.

The excitement, the sun, the tired muscles from over-exercising all make the picnic a bit more risky than the quiet meal at home.

An extra thermos of pure drinking water is wise.

The best rule to go by is common sense.

Beautiful Wedding
At Immanuel Church

Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Immanuel Lutheran church, a beautiful June wedding took place, with Rev. A. G. Suechting, pastor of the church officiating at the single ring service which united in holy matrimony Miss Marie Antoinetta Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobs of Marion township and Marcus F. ## Dahlias Are Beautiful and Hardy

Several specimens of lovely dahlias have been sent to the Telegraph in the past week, and notice made of their early blooming. This morning Walter Hetherington of Oregon, Route 4, brought to the office a bouquet of beautiful dark red dahlias, the centers seemingly of black velvet. One of the flowers was said to be thirteen inches in circumference. In the center of the bouquet were a few of the dainty old fashioned white flower, which we will remember in grandmother's garden—that little button-like flower which smells like evergreen, the fever-few, "member?"

Colorful Holly-
hocks in Bloom

This has every indication of being a wonderful year for hollyhocks. There are few flowers who give such gracious returns for a bit of care as hollyhocks. Essentially a flower to be left blooming in the garden or wherever growing, it transforms immediate surroundings into bowers of beauty. Its tall straight stalks aglow with beautiful blossoms the hollyhock, that dear old fashioned flower, holds a place in the hearts of all flower lovers never to be supplanted by another.

In driving east of Dixon one, is charmed with the hollyhocks growing about the Chas. Llevan home, and about the yard and garden. It is worth a drive to see them, in all their color and beauty.

On the Lincoln highway, towards Sterling, many hollyhocks are noted also. Over in Rock Falls growing against a grey, old barn are clumps of rose and red hollyhocks, making a picture for an artist—and then, just across the road is clumps of beautiful orchid hollyhocks, a rare shade for them.

Some years ago Dixon was "Hollyhock Town" and maybe next year it may be hollyhock town again for there are many places where there are many of the flowers in bloom.

The next meeting of the club will be held July 20th at Grand Detour.

YOUR
by Olive Roberts Barton
©1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

You will be packing picnic lunch probably for the next three or more months.

What are you going to put in those baskets? Sugar and spice and everything nice? Or will you include tasty wholesome food?

The old idea of picnics, and the nucleus of most lunches today contain cake, pie, bananas, sandwiches and sweet drinks.

Taken one by one none of these is "truck" as the saying goes, but taken en masse they are.

To this list ice-cream cones of synthetic elements, boxes of patent goodies, peanuts, and the inevitable low drinks of cold water, and what have you? One or more cases of first-class summer complaint.

No one wants to take the joy out of life or delightful anticipation out of the picnic basket.

But it is well to consider a few things before you pack it.

In the first place where is the outing to be? In a quiet country spot or in a pleasure park?

It makes a difference, you know particularly if Johnny and Mary have fifty cents apiece to do as they please with.

Lure of the Pop Stand

"The chances are they will wish to load up at a pop stand with several varieties of toothsome refreshments and confections."

I believe that most of these things are pure and wholesome enough, so if Johnny and Mary are of an age to indulge, I have no advice to give. That is your problem. My children never get sick on them.

But the difference it makes is this if they are going shopping for their own sweets, the basket to be opened at lunch time will need to supply the balance of plain foods.

The thermos instead of lemonade should contain cool, sweet milk. The sandwiches need not be rich, but should contain meat or egg, or sliced tomatoes and delicious sandwiches are made of pure, or peanut butter, or jelly, white cream cheese and dates chopped.

Fruit is always good at a picnic, but it should be ripe and clean, and the kind that you know agrees with your children. No fruit

THINKING MACHINES.

A Harvard University dean declares that what this country needs to pull it out of the economic slogs of despond is a "central thinking agency." He is Wallace Brett Donham, dean of Harvard's graduate school of business administration, and he presents this theory in a new book entitled "Business Looks at the Unforeseen."

It is Dean Donham's view that men chosen by representatives of the government, of business, and of labor should constitute this "central thinking agency" to work out plans for the conduct of the economic life of the nation.

As an expert on economics, Dean Donham speaks with authority and is entitled to an audience. His plan, no doubt, has merit. But surely the dean has named the project ill-advisedly.

What the country needs is not a "central thinking agency" but more thinking on the part of individuals. A great deal more thinking! The charge that men and women of the democracy are altogether too prone to let others do their thinking is stressed constantly by all who would raise the national status of health, wealth and happiness. Encourage Mr. Average Citizen to be his own "thinking agent" and more of his own troubles will be solved.

A BATTLE FOR LIFE.

The state of Kentucky had a difficult time the other night when it came to electrocute Walter Holmes, murderer. Holmes put up a battle when the guards came to lead him from his cell to the electric chair. He stabbed one guard with a home-made dagger, drew cups of scalding water from the faucet in his cell and tossed them on the other guards, and finally wrenched loose a section of pipe and fought desperately. In the end he had to be bound and carried to the chair.

The interesting thing about this outburst is the fact that it is so nearly unique. Condemned men almost go meekly to their deaths. Occasionally one faints, and has to be helped on his last walk; but hardly ever does the natural instinct to fight to the end for life assert itself in the death cell.

OUTLAWING CRIMINALS.

Many years ago there was a provision under English law where by a notorious criminal could be "outlawed"; that is, by executive proclamation he could be put outside the protection of the law, and any citizen might kill him without incurring any penalty. Oddly enough, several American states have that provision on their statute books; North Carolina, for instance, has such a law, a relic of the dark ages of 1866.

The interesting point about all this is that it has recently been proposed that statutes of this kind be revived to-day to permit a harassed public to deal effectively with racketeers, kidnapers, gangsters and the like.

There is no question but that the ordinary methods of handling these thugs have utterly failed. Would this old English law be worth a trial? It would be a dangerous weapon to use, certainly, open to many abuses. But the plan is worth a little discussion.

I was selling my stocks in 1928. Now I am buying. The situation is no more new today than was the situation in 1929.—James Truslow Adams, historian and ex-broker.

We will not defeat communism by denouncing it. We will defeat communism only by surmounting it with a similar devotion to our own social ideals of economic justice and public service.—Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Riverside Baptist Church, New York.

We should look to the future and profit by mistakes of the past. History shows that we have been through trying times before.—Dudley S. Humphrey, 80-year-old popcorn king, Cleveland.

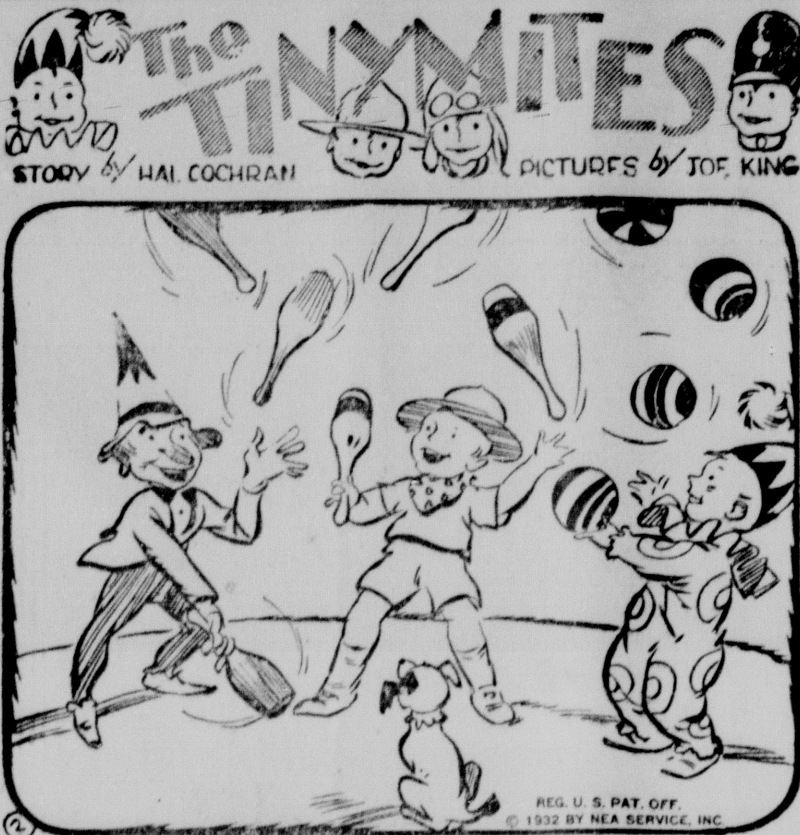

These are hard days, critical days, but they are days in which it is worth while to live and toil—stirring days.—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

The day is not far when the Spaniards will realize that I was not such a bad king, after all, and that I did do something for the welfare of Spain.—Alfonso, ex-King of Spain.

I can secure. Every penny that I'm allowed will go for food.—Sheriff John Sulzmann, Cleveland, leading advocate of "comfortable" jails.

The real fact is that New York municipalities are operating on a sounder basis than ever before.—Mayor John B. Harris of Watertown, N. Y.

Germans have learned from their economic distress that monarchies are good for business.—Lord Rothermere, British publisher.

The auto had been built to fall to pieces, and that wasn't all. It had a couple of funny tires that were flat.

The Tinsies weight had its effect and wee Duncy shouted, "Oh, we're wrecked," when both the tires blew out wind that caught poor Duncy's hat.

"Don't worry," said the funny clown. "This auto may turn upside down, but we will be all right, I'm sure. I've run this thing before."

"You see, it is a crazy thing. I hop in and have my little fling. When things begin to happen it makes everybody roar."

"All hold on tight and you will see how funny this machine can be." Then he pressed on a lever and the auto seat went flop.

Of course this startled every lad and Scouty said, "Oh, that is too bad. I feel like I am going to fall. Perhaps we had better stop."

The clown replied, "Don't worry, son. We're merely having lots of fun. I'll bring the seat back up again, so you'll be safe and sound."

But, when the seat rose in the air, it gave the Tinsies quite a scare and Duncy cried, "I've had enough," as he jumped to the ground.

The other Tinsies did the same. The funny clown then shouted, "Watch the flame!" And instantly the queer machine began to sput and spark.

"Those are real Roman candles my little lads," the clown said. "Listen to the noise." Then, when the flames had died out, he exclaimed "that ends my lark."

In just a moment Coppy found a treat. It was a big greyhound! "They are training him to jump high," he shouted. "Gee, what fun!" The trainer said, "Stand where you are and I will let you hold the bar." Just then the Tinsies grabbed it and the dog came, on the run.

Railroads Say: Let the Fittest Survive

The evolution of transportation, from crude beginnings to the present time, has ever been governed by the law of the survival of the fittest.

Under the operation of this law, railroads came to be the dominant mode of transport in this country. Now other forms of transport are engaged in a struggle with the railroads for commercial traffic. It is right and proper that the fittest should survive.

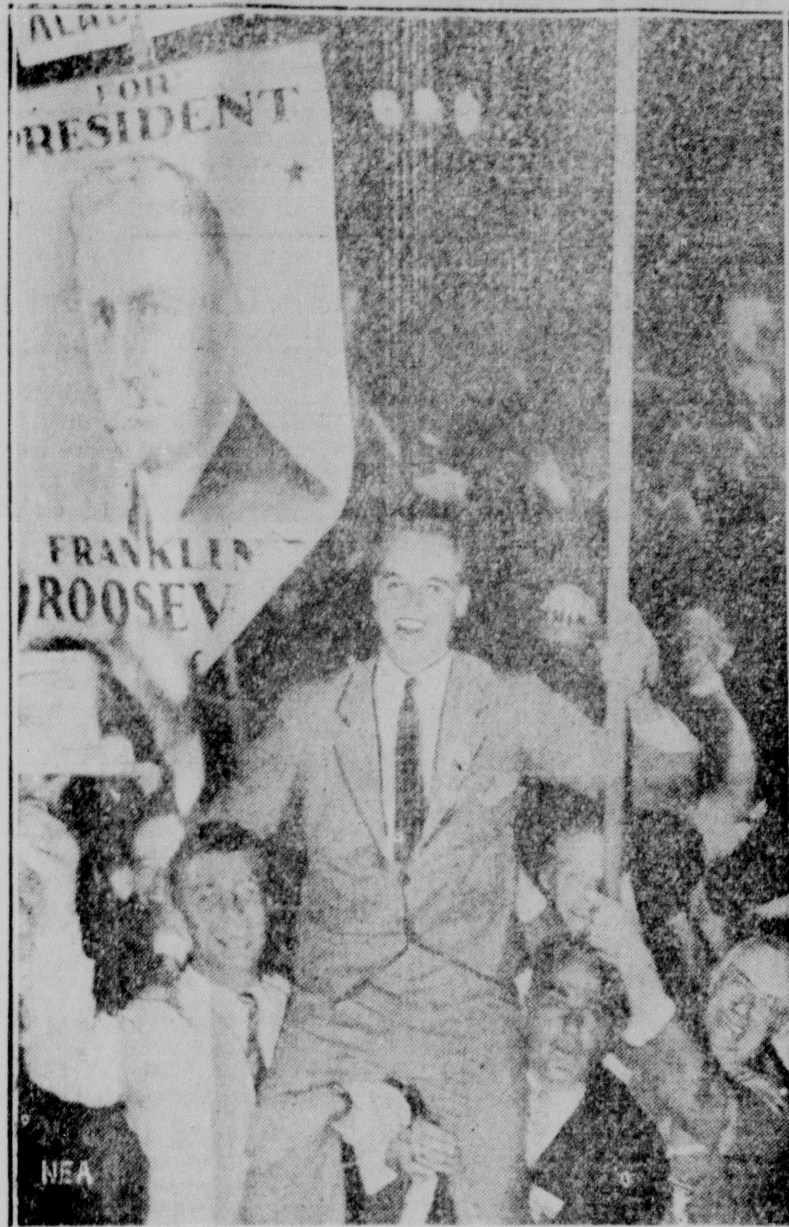

The railroads welcome a fair test of their fitness for providing the transport services which the country needs and must have. They ask only that it be a fair test, conducted by private agencies equally regulated and alike free from subsidies, each standing on its own bottom and fully paying its own way.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Mary Quigley, daughter of James Quigley, a delegate to the convention from Valentine, Neb., gave the convention one of its big thrills during the demonstration for Roosevelt. She was originally arrested on a vagrancy charge. On her promise to marry Bouvier, she was released. She was recently arrested on a similar charge, and, when it was learned she hadn't become the good wife of Bouvier she was jailed to serve out a $60 fine.

MILEAGE MADE IN PARADES DURING NIGHT IS GREAT

Almost Entire Night At Convention Taken Up By Speeches, Etc.

By BRIAN BELL
Chicago, July 1—(AP)—When all the parades in the Chicago Stadium were laid end to end there were a lot of sore feet. Many Democrats have done more walking in the last 24 hours than they had done in 24 days. The mileage was impressive.

The unencumbered parades, unarmed and simply going for the walk, were the amateurs. The men and women carrying a flag or standard in one hand and a rattle, tambourine or bell in the other were the pros. They lost their amateur standing at some other convention, many years ago.

The Chicago Stadium with a sparse few thousand occupants no doubt is a comfortable place in which to watch a sporting event, especially a hockey game. Pack 25,000 to 30,000 persons around and above the arena and it is something else again. It is hot enough sitting still with a fan on each side. Only the rugged can parade under such conditions.

Vets Know Their Parades
The veterans of other conventions loomed above their marching fellows. They paid no attention to the weather, the condition of the track nor the fact that many of them were allotted weight for age. They knew their parades.

One perspiring marcher sniffed at a friendly spectator gave him a wave from a fan.

"Don't mind me," he said, "I did this for Bryan."

Some of the girls got a break. Gallant fellow delegates lifted them on shoulders and carried them around the hall, letting the drops of perspiration fall where they might. Almost the entire night was taken up by nominating speeches and demonstrations.

EX-GOVERNOR SMITH
Shouting "give us a man who dares" Governor Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts placed in nomination Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior" candidate of 1928.

A modern Andrew Jackson, positive, virile, straight-speaking, plain thinking statesman, Smith was called by his nominator, "even his enemies recognize the comparison." Every editorial writer in the United States acclaims the sterling quality of his personality. The great constitutional lawyers of his day acknowledged his divine gift of government.

Smith alone of all the candidates offered to the party, maintained Ely, has been "so utterly bold" as to disregard his political future in proposing a cleanout, definite program for the government to follow in attaining the country's economic recovery. Smith

McAdoo's Root for Garner at Convention

JOHN NANCE GARNER
FOR PRESIDENT

Prominent among those who marched in the demonstration for Jack Garner at the Democratic convention were William G. McAdoo of California and his daughter, Miss Ellen Wilson McAdoo, a granddaughter of the late Woodrow Wilson. They are shown above with their banner. McAdoo managed Garner's campaign in California and has been one of his most ardent supporters for the nomination.

alone, he held, has the spirit which must be offered "in contrast with the wavering, doubtful, disheartening conduct of the Republican administration."

He reviewed the distinguished record of Smith in public office, four times Governor of New York, recalled how in 1928 as Democratic choice for president he polled fifteen million votes, a total unsurpassed by any candidate but Herbert Hoover.

The Massachusetts Governor suggested it would be better for the Democratic party to endorse the Republican nominee if it was unable to show a clear advantage would derive from election of its own leader.

He maintained that Massachusetts had spoken out clearly and that he believed the entire industrial east joined in discarding "the prejudices of our Protestant ancestors" against entrusting the government to one of another faith.

GOV. GEORGE WHITE
Heralded as a man unsurpassed in merit, Governor George White of Ohio was nominated by former Senator Atlee Pomerene.

Pomerene stressed to the assembled delegates Governor White's stand on prohibition, advocacy of submission of a repeal amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead law. Pomerene said: "No American will ever have occasion to say to Governor White 'be even and direct with me.'"

He recounted the State Executive's stand in the Ohio legislature and in Congress, always taking the position that "the people decide for themselves."

"Name him as our candidate for the presidency and democracy will not be on the defensive," Pomerene said. "He will make an aggressive fight from the day the campaign opens until its close."

Governor White's record as Governor was outlined by the speaker, emphasis being laid on his economy program in which a saving of more than $9,000,000 was claimed for his first year, and particularly his relief program which was enacted by two special legislative sessions.

On national questions, White was described as opposing high domestic tariffs which bring retaliation from foreign countries and cancellation of war debts until we can "be assured by deed and not by word that thereby international peace will be preserved."

GOV. WM. H. MURRAY
The delegates heard Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma nominated for the presidency as Democracy's "Man of the Hour."

In placing his name before the convention, former Governor Henry S. Johnston of Perry, Okla., said Oklahoma's Chief Executive "knows enough to realize that the remedy for an empty stomach is a square meal and the way to a square meal is a square deal."

Johnston said the main issues in the coming campaign were finance and economics.

"Governor Murray knows enough to realize that voluntary and involuntary idleness are equally destructive; he knows that the former is self-imposed and the fault of the idler, and that the latter is thrust upon an individual and is the fault of the system," Johnston said.

"Murray is the man of the hour," Johnston said, "he is that as measured both by his position and qualifications; he is that by experience and by inherent character qualifications—by virtue of being a great constitutional lawyer, a Democrat in the majestic sense, a true tribune of the people."

HARRY FLOOD BYRD
Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia was offered to the party as a candidate who, as Governor of Virginia, made a record "never surpassed in the entire history of the state."

"What Byrd did for Virginia he would do for the country if nominated by this convention and elected by the people," said Senator Carter Glass in placing Byrd in nomination before the convention. He reminded that Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry were once Virginia Senators.

"A confirmed expert in business methods, tested in the problems of public taxation, he would inaugurate at Washington a wise and provident and honest pay-as-you-go administration, of which the Democratic party would be proud and from which the entire nation would derive the blessings of a better hope and the contentment of permanent recovery," Glass asserted.

Assailing the Republican administration and declaring the nation is confronted with economic problems demanding a sane solution to escape a choice between insolvency and "unendurable taxation of the people, Glass praised Byrd as possessing the thought, purpose and courage necessary to lead.

GOV. ALBERT RITCHIE
Nominating Governor Albert Ritchie of Maryland, Senator Millard E. Tydings called the Governor "the man of destiny."

"This man," said the Maryland Senator, "embodies, as does no other, the qualities for which the nation yearns."

"He is now 55 years of age, in the rich prime of his life, in the full vigor of his manhood, rich in executive experience, with a record of demonstrated accomplishment, the reputation of which in the national sphere is the demand of the day."

"With him you can attract the support of millions of Republicans who are weary of Republican misrule and at the same time arouse a militant Democracy to carry our standard to victory," Tydings said.

He assailed bitterly the present Federal administration, asserting that "everywhere, people are praying for freedom from paralyzing bewilderments and fears; for they are sick unto death of the spineless, which has marked these troubled times."

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, poverty, fear, chaos and despair, "ride grimly and ominously" over the land, Tydings asserted, but "the present administration at Washington has proven itself powerless to bring these dreaded riders down."

Ritchie's record as Governor of Maryland was cited, his fight against expansion of the Federal government, his stand against "bureaucracy and the overgrown" lauded, and his early battle against the 18th Amendment referred to.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR
Melvin A. Traylor of Illinois was described as a new type of candidate by Michael L. Igoe of Chicago. "We must name a new type of man, one who will change the national psychology—one who will point this nation once more toward assured prosperity," Igoe said.

"We accordingly propose to you as our nominee for President one to whom the American people would turn with infinite relief against the weakness, the indecision, the lack of vision, the ineptitude, and the incompetence of Herbert Hoover."

Igoe told of the birth of Traylor in the Kentucky hills and reviewed his career beginning as a small town banker in southwest Texas, later at Fort Worth, then in East St. Louis and later in Chicago. He told of Traylor's stumping Kentucky for William Jennings Bryan in 1896 and the assistance he gave Anton Cermak in cleaning out "the Republican mare's nest in Chicago."

"I nominate a man who will win, a man who will lead the nation back again to prosperity and happiness. A son of the southland, an adopted son of Illinois, for President—Melvin A. Traylor."

JAMES A. REED
The name of James A. Reed, the silver haired former Senator from Missouri, was placed in nomination by Samuel W. Fordyce, St. Louis attorney.

"If you wish vagueness or vacillation," Fordyce told the Democratic convention, "do not choose Senator Reed."

Fordyce said the party must convince the American people that the possessor of property would be protected in his honest rights; he warned against Communism and Socialism and said the time demanded a man who would do these things.

"I present to you such a man," he said, "Throughout his long and useful life he has endeared himself

"The Candidate Must Be Roosevelt"

Judge John E. Mack of New York is here shown in a striking closeup as he spoke from the convention platform nominating the governor of his state for the party's candidacy for president. "The candidate of this convention shall be, must be, and will be Franklin Delano Roosevelt," said Judge Mack, and the demonstration was on.

CO-OPERATIVES PROVED VALUES IN DIVERS WAYS

Growth of Movement in Lee County Confined To Ten Years

By LEE CO. FARM BUREAU
Almost every Farm Bureau member the first time he heard of "co-operative marketing", for much of the growth and progress in this field has been confined to the past 10 years.

Farm Bureau members were the leaders in developing many of the newer co-operative marketing associations and those who have helped the movement along by selling their commodities through co-operative channels can look back with a great deal of satisfaction on the progress made.

They not only have the satisfaction that comes from owning their own marketing machinery, but they are saving thousands of dollars by keeping their commodities in friendly hands from the time they leave the farm until they reach the consumer or the processor.

The great system of farmer-owned and controlled co-operatives now operating on a national basis and handling farm commodities in volume never before handled by any agency is beyond the wildest dream of the pioneers in the movement.

The co-operative movement in Illinois had its beginning in the formation of farmer-owned grain elevators and co-operative livestock shipping associations which operated as independent local organizations. It was not until after the depression of 1921-22 that Illinois farmers began serious to develop machinery to control their own marketing after they left the country point.

This movement led to the organization of the Producers Livestock Commission Association of East St. Louis, followed by similar sales co-operatives the next year at Chicago, Peoria, and Indianapolis. The Illinois Agricultural Association devoted much time and effort to the organization of these co-ops.

About this time the I. A. A. also began making surveys to find the possibilities in marketing other commodities co-operatively. The year 1921 marks the beginning of the first state fruit and vegetable cooperative, the first co-operative milk association, and the first attempts at handling grain on the terminal markets.

At present Illinois farmers have state-wide agencies for marketing milk, vegetables, livestock, grain, soybeans, butterfat, poultry, red top seed, and other commodities. Several of these are affiliated with national marketing organizations.

More than 23,000 carloads of Illinois livestock were handled through Producers' Commission Associations or sold direct to packers during 1931. Early in the year the Illinois Livestock Marketing Association was organized to coordinate the work of county and district marketing associations and direct the movement of livestock to the best markets.

At the present time the state association has six county concentration points in operation and two more almost ready to open. The volume of livestock handled by these points has increased every month since last October when they started operating as units of the association.

In May the volume was nearly 3,000,000 pounds. During the early months from October 1 to June 1 the association handled 15,309,520 pounds. The new organization is affiliated with the National Livestock Marketing Association and works in cooperation with Producers' Commission agencies.

The Illinois Grain Corporation, organized in 1930, now has over eighty member elevators as compared with 32 at the beginning of 1931. These elevators have a combined business of 14,000,000 bushels of grain annually.

Illinois Grain Corporation stands third among the 25 regional co-operatives in volume of grain handled through Farmers National Grain Corporation during the past year. At least 60 of the 102 counties in the state have used the terminal facilities of the co-operative, sending their grain from more than 200 shipping points. The average volume from Illinois for the past four months is more than 600 cars a month. In March, 666 cars were handled by the state organization.

A seven per cent dividend on preferred stock in Illinois Grain was recently paid out of the earnings of the co-operative. This is an indication that the organization is getting the support of grain growers. Deficits incurred during the organization period also have been paid off. For the first time in history farmers are organized to control their grain until it reaches the processor or consumer.

The Illinois Fruit Growers Exchange last year handled more than 1,200 cars of fruit and vegetables, selling to 300 markets in 25 states and three Canadian provinces. This is one of the oldest co-operatives in the state. It is affiliated with the National Fruit and Vegetable Exchange, recently organized with A. B. Leeper as its president and general manager. In addition to its marketing activities the state exchange purchases supplies for fruit growers and has only recently organized a credit corporation to aid its members.

Practically every milk market in Illinois is now organized and 85 per cent of the fluid milk in the state is marketed through co-operatives. The value of co-operatives in the fluid milk industry is shown by the fact that milk has the least farm commodity to suffer price declines, and even now milk is much above the level of grain, livestock, and other major commodities.

An important step is now being undertaken at Rock Island and at Peoria to take care of surplus milk by setting up creameries owned and operated by the milk co-operatives. During the past year surplus milk has created one of the major problems confronting the industry.

The Illinois Produce Marketing Association handled more than 3,000,000 pounds of butterfat during 1931 through its 48 member county associations. It is estimated by F. A. Giegler, director of produce marketing for the I. A. A. that the co-operative actually raised the price of butterfat three cents above what the price would have been without farmer organization. This means a cash return of several hundred thousand dollars, not including patronage refunds to members.

Non-members as well as members receive the benefit of the improved price level. The Soybean Marketing Association, which has just finished its second season, has handled nearly 3,000,000 bushels of soybeans at prices above paid across the state line in Indiana where soybean growers are not organized. This year the association handled a considerable volume of beans for export. About 31 counties sent soybeans through the co-operative this year. More than 4,000 growers hold memberships in the organization.

Illinois produces about 40 per cent of the soybeans produced in the United States for commercial purposes, and of these the Soybean Association markets about 60 per cent. Nearly 1,000 new members were signed up by the red-top seed co-operative, the Egyptian Seed Growers Exchange in 1931, increasing the membership to 2,738. This co-operative controls a large part of the red-top grown in this country. About 90 per cent of the country's supply comes from southern Illinois where the Seed Growers Exchange is located.

NO FUN ON THIS JOB
Quincy, Mass. — Firemen get all sorts of calls here in addition to those entailing called to rout a nest of hornets that had formed under the eaves of a private home. Armed with hooks, they started to rout the hornets—but after a short time it was a matter of opinion as to who was doing the routing the firemen or the hornets.

BERLIN TO ATHENS
Berlin—The Deutsch Luft-Hansa and the International Air Navigation Co. have started a one-day Berlin-Athens and Paris-Athens air service. The Greek Air ministry authorized these flights to open up the country to aviation possibilities, as Greece has been backward so far in accepting commercial aeronautics.

TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY GRANDY CHURCH

Special Services To Be Held At St. Peter's On Sunday

Nine-hundred years ago this month St. Peter's church in Dixon, Ill., was founded. The first bishop of Illinois, visited the little settlement of Grand Detour and held the first known service of the Episcopal church. He convinced of the strategic location and immediately sent a missionary to this locality. Rev. Fr. De Pui, ten years later, Fr. Warner settled in Grand Detour and started raising funds for a church building. Two years later the church was erected and Grand Detour became the center of missionary activity, the missionary traveling by horse on an foot to Dixon, Como, Sterling and Elkhorn Grove. Fr. Warner was pastor of the church and teacher in the public schools for several years.

In 1852 Rt. Rev. Henry J. Whitcomb, D. D., the second bishop of Illinois consecrated the church to the glory of God. For many years St. Peter's was the center of missionary activity until the removal of many of its citizens to other centers of industry. It is interesting to note that at one time the population of Grand Detour was about 2,500 with 14 factories and 24 stores.

Twenty-five years ago, Fr. Whitcomb, then the rector of St. Luke's church in Dixon, opened St. Peter's church for the summer months and considerable interest was aroused. But with the consecration of Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, D. D., a new life was poured into the old church and with the help of the Holy Spirit much has been done to restore the church building and property. A new roof, repointing of the stone work, grading and landscaping the grounds. Placing the wayside cross which all hope may become the center of devotion for passers-by. The new electric installation, new altar, the book shelf and many other improvements.

The founding of the church at Grand Detour will be celebrated Sunday afternoon when Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, D. D., of Chicago will preach at the historic place of worship. A basket picnic will take place on the lawn at the Sunset Inn on the banks of Rock river after the service and those attending are invited to visit the rectory and meet the bishop and several visiting clergymen. The services for Sunday are as follows: Sixth Sunday after Trinity. Church school 10 A. M. Holy Eucharist 11 A. M. Vespers 4 P. M.

AIN'T NO JUSTICE
Portland, Ore. — A youth arrested for stealing gasoline from automobiles was found to have in possession of a car stolen from Lou Wagner, criminal attorney. And Wagner very nearly was named an accomplice of the lad! He was partly to blame for the lad's actions, the deputy district attorney claimed because his car which was stolen was such a high-powered multi-cylindered affair that the boy had to steal gasoline from a number of different cars to keep it running.

FROM WAR TO CATTLE
Nanking — One of China's former powerful war lords has now turned his energy toward the gentle occupation of raising cattle and developing coal mines in Shansi, Shensi and Kansu provinces. He is Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, who was defeated by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek about a year and a half ago.

MEN TESTIFY TO AFFAIRS IN LIFE OF NURSE

Character Of Woman Suing Hutton Is Attacked

Los Angeles, July 1.—(AP)—Just when David Hutton will make his appearance on the witness stand had courthouse spectators guessing today as the defense continued to call a succession of witnesses to testify concerning the character of Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, attractive Pasadena nurse who is suing him for $200,000 for alleged breach of promise.

The singer husband of Almee Simple, McPherson, evangelist, has been expected to testify for the last two days. Mark Jones, his attorney, has announced that Hutton positively will take the stand to defend himself and Hutton has expressed a desire to tell his story to the jury.

Arthur A. Graves, architect, testified yesterday he spent the night before the start of the trial with the nurse, and that on previous occasions he had stayed all night at her home.

Lloyd Curry, a telegraph operator, testified in a milder way concerning Miss St. Pierre's past. He told only of a friendship with the nurse and denied intimacies.

Mrs. Joyce L. Hutton, mother of the defendant, called as a witness by her son, said, to her knowledge, David did not make ardent love to Miss St. Pierre as the nurse had testified.

There was no morning session of court today. Superior Judge Lester Roth adjourned court until afternoon in order that he might attend the funeral of a friend.

WARDEN HILL LEAVES TODAY FOR NEW POST

4,700 Convicts Plead- ed With Him To Re- main At Joliet

Joliet, Ill., July 1.—(AP)—A warden with whom 4,700 convicts pleaded to remain relinquished today his stewardship of the Illinois state penitentiary here.

And the convicts, many hardened murderers and thugs among them, bade Major Henry C. Hill farewell with expressions of genuine sorrow.

He left for Washington to spend a month in preparation for taking over the duties of Warden of the new Federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., on September 1.

Of commanding physique, booming voice and great courage, Major Hill was feared by malcontents and respected by all, but his acknowledged, fairness, genial personality and capacity for friendship had also won him the admiration of the prisoners.

At Lewisburg Warden Hill should feel at home. The furnishings of his office will be duplicates of those he left in his office at Stateville (branch of the Joliet penitentiary). The new furniture was the gift of the inmates of the twin penitentiaries.

TICKET NO JOKE
Houston, Tex. — A plain parking ticket issued by Patrolman Morrow turned out to be a serious offense for the driver to whom it was issued. As Morrow put the ticket on the car, the owner walked up to him, handed him fifty cents, and said: "Here's forget about the ticket." But Morrow didn't forget. He took the man, money and the ticket to police station, where he filed a charge of attempted bribery against the motorist.

Daily Health Talk

"The Fourth of July usually brings a thrill to the average citizen. Justly proud of America's place in history and of its pre-eminent advantages, patriotic emotion manifests itself on the nation's birthday. However, even on Fourth of July, people are inclined to take the national blessings too much for granted. They fail properly to appreciate the significant fact that this country was not made in a day, any more than was Rome. This observation, in a limited sense, may be applied to the mature mouth," said Dr. L. W. Neber, Supt. of the State Health Department's dental section, today.

"We are informed that three-score years and ten are about all that one may expect in this life. And yet nearly one-fourth of that time is required to complete the construction of the mouth in its final form. One would suppose that such a prolonged job would inspire real cooperation. Eighteen years seem a long time for nature to be actually interested in a person's mouth. But the vast majority of people let her do it alone. Putting the entire responsibility on nature, they remain blissfully non-cooperative—until pain arrives. Then, true to type, they growl and sometimes howl. Finally with great reluctance they go to a dentist to have the offending tooth pulled out—frequently the first step down the false-teeth road.

"Decidedly, nature deserves a squarer deal than this. She asks, and should receive, as much care and attention as would be given to the construction of an expensive dwelling. It must be understood that great changes occur in the mouth from the sixth to the eighteenth year. It is during this period that the infant teeth are shed and the permanent ones take their position in the dental arch. The importance of guarding against irregularity of the jaw and of fighting the factors that lead to decay at once becomes apparent, and this problem Dame Nature in some measure puts up to the individual, or individuals guardian, to solve.

"In this connection, proper diet from birth to the sixteenth year is an absolute essential. Thorough cleansing is equally important. And periodical visits to the dentist also represent a requirement that can not safely be ignored.

"Remember, that unlike Topsy, a good set of teeth does not just grow even though eighteen years are consumed in the process. Nature asks personal cooperation. Not receiving it, she inevitably backfires. Therefore, don't wait 'till it hurts. Cooperate!"

TREATING TOXIC GOITER

There are several varieties of treatment which, either singly or in combination, are applicable to the sufferer from toxic goiter. Thus the patient may be treated medically, surgically or by means of X-ray and radium. In many instances the physician is obliged to use a combination of these procedures.

The method employed depends upon the age and condition of the patient, the acuteness or chronicity of his disease, the degree of intoxication suffered, and the results obtained by preliminary treatment.

The acutely ill young patient may at times be treated successfully medically through the use of iodine, together with rest and other measures. However, failure to improve under such treatment may necessitate surgical intervention.

The effects on the body of the intoxication due to toxic goiter are cumulative and the patient who has suffered the disease for a long time makes a poor operative risk, and is not as likely to have good results from his operation as the person spared the prolonged effects of the disease.

Thyrotoxicosis, as the condition toxic goiter is termed, may affect the heart, the nervous system, the digestion and excretory organs, as well as the function of the higher levels of the brain.

In certain conditions X-ray and radium may be employed in the treatment of toxic goiter. Which of these treatments to employ is a matter to be determined by careful study of each individual case. The patient who suffers from toxic goiter should not attempt to dictate to his physician the method of treatment, merely because the one he prefers has been known to be effective on some of his acquaintances who had a similar case.

Nor should the patient unduly delay making a decision when surgical intervention is advised. No surgeon can promise the prospect of a good outcome when the case has been allowed to go on too long.

Senate Agrees To Give Needy Wheat

Washington, July 1—(AP)—The Senate yesterday agreed to a conference report on a resolution for distribution to the needy, through the Red Cross of 45,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from the Farm Board stocks. On approval by the House the measure will go to President Hoover.

Mrs. Al Smith Watches Smith Parade

The bands were blaring "The Sidewalks of New York" and thousands were singing Al Smith's famous "theme song" when this picture was taken at the height of the demonstration in his honor at the Democratic national convention. The demonstration began immediately when Governor Joseph B. Ely closed his speech that placed Smith's name before the delegates as a candidate for the nomination.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PUMMER

Chicago—If anyone of the thousands of politically-minded in Chicago at this writing for the Democratic national convention had any suspicion that Alfred Emanuel Smith had lost any of his old zip, he certainly must have changed his mind within a few hours of arrival.

He has lost none of it. If any thing he has more than ever before.

He can still, as the saying goes, "give it and take it." It's necessary to attend one of his press conferences in the gold room of the Congress hotel—headquarters of the Democrats as well as most of the presidential aspirants—to see the brown derby really in action. (Only it's not the brown derby out here, but a stiff straw hat.)

There the "give and take" is at its best—

THE greater part of those 726

gentlemen of the "working press" assigned to the convention are present on these occasions. In addition there are scores more who somehow manage to slip by the major demo and get inside the tremendous room.

Al sits at the center of a long-green table flanked on each side by a stenographer. His face a beet red from sunburn, the inevitable clear in his mouth, and a wide grin on his face, he barks:

"The chairman calls the meeting to order."

Then come the questions, fast and furious. Back go the answers just as rapidly and just as pointed. He never hesitates. Often before the question has been completed he has started on the answer.

He laughs, he kids, he wisecracks and at times grows serious.

Huey Long of Louisiana gives him a great kick. The excitable, bellicose young Louisiana Senator describes himself as the "Kingfish."

But to Smith he is "The General."

"Yes, I've seen the General," he replied to a questioner. "He breezed through the lobby the lobby the through the lobby the other night with his cream suit on."

His headquarters at the Congress on the mezzanine floor halfway down that banner-lined corridor is always packed and jammed, the hang-ers-on wait inside and up and down the corridor in the hope that he will put in his appearance. Photographers lie in wait for him. They "shoot" him at every opportunity, no matter what he is doing.

One day an old Indian chief from nearby Wisconsin presented him with a five-pound fish. It's the first time the Brown Derby lost patience with the photographers. They wanted him to pose holding the fish.

"I ain't going to do it," he shouted. "I've been posing for nine hours. Get one of those pictures out of your bag and paint a fish on it if you must have it."

Norris Begins To Change His Mind

Washington, July 1—(AP)—Senator Norris (R. Neb.), long a prohibitionist, believes the time may have come when the Volstead act should be modified to try a new experiment in the control of liquor.

Commenting on the Democratic prohibition plank advocating repeal and immediate modification, Norris confessed that he was "terribly disappointed" at the way the prohibition laws have worked out.

"I'm not sure but what we have tried it long enough to be sure it won't be satisfactory," he said. "But I don't want to leave it wide open."

July once bore the name Quintilis, being at that time the fifth month of the year and containing 30 days.
The ancient applied the name "dog days" to a period of 40 days, during which time Sirius, the dog-star, rose just before the sun. It was thought that the extreme heat of this season was due to the combined heat of the dog-star and the sun. We still retain the expression "dog days" for the hottest season of the year.

Ancient City of Gaza

Strong Military Point Old Gaza, the great city of Palestine, which was well known to Abraham, was one of the most strongly fortified in the ancient world.

Sir Flinders Petrie, the veteran archeologist, announced, a short time ago, the discovery of another secret passage leading out into the desert.

So great is the area still to be explored in Gaza that Sir Flinders estimates that it will take 50 years to excavate it all.

The elaborate defenses of the city, which was in its heyday at the time of Abraham, are so complicated that military experts with the expedition did not fully understand them.

A great tunnel leading from inside the city, under the walls and nearly 500 yards out into the desert, was found. This was considered to be a means of escape in emergency, or a method by which a surprise attack could be made on besieging forces.

Further excavations of the main gate revealed another tunnel cut in the solid sandstone.

MISSIONS DAY AT CONFERENCE WAS HIGH SPOT

All Great Fields Were Represented During Day's Program

Thursday was the high day of the Rock River Bible Conference which is in session this week at Assembly Park. Ten missionaries spoke, representing practically all the great mission fields of the world.

Rev. Walter Marshall, chairman, announced at the afternoon session that the conference registration this year showed a fine growth and a wide representation. So far, twenty-six cities are represented, six states, ten countries and twenty-two denominations.

Dr. Walter H. Traub, pastor of the largest Lutheran church of America at Omaha, Neb., who spoke last night will appear twice on today's program—afternoon and evening. In addition, Rev. Philip Sidersky, born at Vilna, Russia, has arrived to speak twice today and each succeeding session of the conference.

A delightful feature of last night's program was the singing of the great young people's choir of Rockford. The young people numbering fifty, favored the audience with several choice sacred songs and anthems.

A noon luncheon was held at the First Baptist church in honor of the missionaries. All nine of the foreign missionaries present for the conference made brief addresses at this occasion.

View World's Need With Missionaries The only morning session of the conference was held yesterday, opening at 10:30, with Rev. L. E. Conner, pastor of the Church of God, presiding. After a brief devotional and song service led by Elmer Rice and Clinton Fahrney, Rev. Conner introduced the first speaker of the day, Mrs. C. C. Heckman, missionary of the Church of the Brethren to Garkada, Nigeria, Africa. She and husband began labors in Nigeria in 1924 among at tribe which numbers one hundred thousand. Mrs. Heckman is a most charming personality and an interesting speaker and started the day off on a plane of high interest.

"I Want to Go Back" "Don't pity the missionary," said Mrs. Heckman. "We don't want pity but prayers. We love our work and would rather be in our fields of service than anywhere else. As we missionaries usually have a year on furlough folks often say to us, 'must you go back so soon' as though we might dread it. I every day go back and work among my dear folks Garkada. I am happy to be of help to those poor folk."

Briefly Mrs. Heckman sketched the progress that has been made in that section of the dark continent and showed how Christianity is delivering the people from their fears and superstitions and false social systems like polygamy.

Female Goddesses Cause Evil The second speaker was Miss Annie Sanford, of the Guntur Mission, India, who is working under the United Lutheran Church board. Miss Sanford has served thirty-six years in her chosen field. She stated that it was a curious fact that over that great land of people attributed all evil and suffering to female deities.

form of sickness, pain or disaster of any kind is attributed to some evil spirit that is worshipped as a goddess.

"A striking contrast to this country," she stated, "is observed in the fact that there you never see any country or farm homes. The farmers do not live on their farms as here but dwell in villages and go out to work their fields, taking their dinners along each day."

"Cast is our greatest hindrance. The illiteracy is general. Add to this the difficulty of having to speak in over 200 languages in order to reach all the people of that land. In our own land we are glad to report that while the rate of population has increased ten per cent the membership has increased thirty per cent."

Strange Sadness in South Am. Rev. J. D. Montgomery, missionary of the Christian church to Argentina, South America spoke just before the noon hour. Inasmuch as the noon lunch was scheduled for 12:00 o'clock promptly. Mr. Montgomery was given ten minutes before noon and fifteen at the afternoon session. He related many interesting things about the twenty sister republics of our own continent with a population of approximately, 84,000,000. Mr. Montgomery stated that he had observed general spirit of sadness over the southern hemisphere due he thinks to the survival of pagan superstitions which have been transferred to Christian forms. The cross is in evidence everywhere in shrines and wayside chapels, and an undue emphasis is placed on death without the thought of the victory brought through Christ's sacrifice. Much illiteracy is found here made from the large cities and the Bible is an unknown book to millions.

Philippines Revere Our Heroes Rev. O. L. Davis Methodist missionary to the Philippine Islands, who is a professor in the Union Theological Seminary of Manila, briefly sketched the progress education and Christian ideals have made in the Islands since American protection has come to them. Mr. Davis represents a young people's movement of the Islands that now has a membership of seventy thousand.

His organization is making rapid strides winning the young people to active Christian service. He stated that the younger generation of the Philippines are enthralled with the great heroes of American history—Washington, Patrick Henry and Lincoln. About one fourth of the people now talk English.

Hunt Hunted Hot Spot Rev. W. B. Hunt, for thirty-five years Presbyterian missionary to Korea gave some interesting episodes of his work. He stated that the Korean home is heated by an underground tunnel from the kitchen stove. One day he came into a home, cold and tired. A rough looking Korean man was hovering over the "hot-spot." Rev. Hunt tried to be pleasant and engage him in conversation, hoping both to do him good and to strike up a friendly relationship with the man so that he might be invited to share in the warmth of the hot-spot. The man was irresponsive. But the missionary kept on finally giving him a straight message of rebuke for his selfishness. Rev. Hunt said he did not get to share the hot spot that day with that man, but later when he returned he found the man had been converted and a church was the result. Ninety per cent of the mission churches there are now self supporting.

Women Rated Below Dogs. Rev. Lee Lewis, Baptist Missionary to Burma, India, brought many interesting episodes. He stated that in India women are held in lower esteem than dogs according to Hindu superstition, a woman hopes to be reborn a dog, than a higher order, than as a male child and then at last achieve Nerva, or nothingness. He says the people are hungry for the book that tells about a Father God. He showed several costumes worn by natives. He showed that much progress has been made in his field where he labors among a million and a half Koreans.

Fence the Demons Out. Mrs. Roland D. Slater, an Illinois woman, told of her experience at Nankin, China, where she served as missionary of the Christian church. She told of a curious thing that attracted her attention when she first arrived in China. All the homes were protected by a screen before the door. It was sometimes constructed of concrete, wood or some material like bamboo. She learned it was because of a superstition that demons could not turn sharp corners, therefore the screen is placed before the door to keep them from getting into the homes. Girls are cheap and the demons pay no attention to them and for this reason many families dress their boys in girls' clothes to protect them from being harmed by the demons.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father. About Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to love money. They take a cheap apartment and her father, who is a miser, is disgusted. Friends invite Cherry and Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry acts out with Pearson in his car. A heavy rainstorm overtakes them and they lose their way. About they reach an oil station and take shelter there. Pearson suddenly tells Cherry he loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

CHERRY drew back. "Don't, Max!" she cried. "You mustn't! Oh—how could you say such things?"

"Why shouldn't I say them? They're true! I've wanted to tell you for a long time! Couldn't you guess how I cared, Cherry? Didn't you know it?"

The girl was on her feet. Pearson would have caught her to him but she pushed him away. "Don't, Max!" she insisted. "Please—!"

She stood there facing him. The dark eyes seemed almost black in her suddenly pale face. There was terror and amazement written on Cherry's face. All at once she whirled abruptly, walked to the window and stood with her back to Pearson.

There was silence. Then Cherry turned. "I thought you were Dan's friend," she said slowly. "I supposed you were all the things he thinks you are—loyal and honorable and—"

He stopped her. "You needn't say any more," Pearson said, rising. "I just lost my head for a few minutes. I hope you'll forget all about it—and don't worry that I'll bother you again."

Pearson's face was white, too. He left her, striving with long steps into the adjoining room.

Miserably Cherry sat before the counter, resting her chin in her hands. What a night! Who could have foreseen that the outing on which she had set forth so eagerly a few hours before could end like this? She tried to tell herself these things were not true. Pearson had not made that wild declaration. She was not alone with him in an out of the way oil station miles from home with the rain coming down in torrents and the roads flooded. Oh, where was Dan? Why didn't he help her?

The tears welled in Cherry's eyes

She brushed them aside, rose and went to the doorway.

Pearson was sitting on a box calmly smoking a cigar. The youth in charge of the oil station was talking and Pearson seemed to be giving him all his attention.

Cherry went back to the counter. She could hear the rain beating a sharp tattoo on the window pane. The fire had gone out and the room was becoming cold. She picked up Max's raincoat and drew it around her. Then she sat for a long while staring out at the storm.

PEARSON did not return. It was the other young man who finally appeared in the doorway.

"Storm's letting up some," he announced. "He says if you're willing he'll try to make Scott Junction. You may be able to telephone from there."

Cherry hesitated. "Do you think it's safe?"

"Well, the car seems to be all right. The road will be bad but by driving carefully and going slow you ought to be able to get there."

Cherry was on her feet. "I suppose we'd better try it," she said. "We certainly can't stay here."

Ten minutes later she and Pearson were in the car. The motor sputtered, then settled down to a steady purr and they were off in the darkness.

It was difficult driving. Pearson and Cherry both kept their eyes on the road ahead. It was still raining, the drops coming down in a steady drizzle. The road that had been caked with dust before the rain was slippery and treacherous now. Part of the time Cherry could see only a few feet ahead.

There was little conversation. Pearson was intent on his driving and the girl had no wish to divert him. Once he spoke of a noise in the mechanism of the car.

"Doesn't sound right," he said. "Well, if the old bus can get us through this I guess she'll deserve a little garage attention."

Cherry listened. There was a new prospect of danger. "You don't think it's anything serious, do you?" she asked.

Pearson gave her a quick glance. "Not unless it gets worse," he answered shortly. His gaze returned to the road ahead.

She asked the time and was told it was almost 10 o'clock. After that they settled down to a long silence. It was Cherry who cried out at the first sign of lights.

"Look, Max!" she exclaimed. "Do you suppose that's Scott Junction? Oh, if we can only telephone—!"

It was the junction, a rural neighborhood including half a dozen stores, a garage and filling station. Pearson halted the car in front of the garage and went inside.

"There's a telephone," he announced when he returned a few minutes later. "Do you want to come inside? I've put a call in for Dan."

Five minutes later Cherry was calling eagerly. "Is that you, Dan? Oh, I'm so glad to hear your voice! No, we're not at Willow Lake. The storm caught us and we missed the road. We're at a place called Scott Junction. Yes, of course, we're all right only I've worried! What? You didn't start out? Yes, dear, I can hear you. Yes, we're coming back. You'll wait at the office? All right. Wait a minute—Max wants to talk to you."

It was well after midnight when the mud splattered roadster drew up before the office of the Wellington News. The rain had stopped at last.

Dan Phillips pulled the door of the car open. "Cherry!" he exclaimed. "Lord, what a time you must have had!" He grinned from the girl to Pearson. "Say, you two certainly look as though you'd had a soaking."

"Climb in," said Pearson. "I think Cherry's anxious to get home." They related their adventures during the brief ride. Cherry told Pearson most of the talking. Phillips was sympathetic. He explained that the storm had started just as Beach and he were ready to set out.

"But how did you lose the way?" he asked.

"I guess I was thinking about the storm and took a wrong turn," Pearson explained. "I've only driven that road twice. It was a dumb thing to do, I'll admit. Cherry's half-frozen. She'd better get into some warm clothes and have something to drink."

"Come up for a while," Phillips urged. "The car had stopped in front of the apartment."

"No thanks. Want to be getting on to my own place. I'll call you in the morning, Dan. Goodnight, Mrs. Phillips."

Cherry could not see Pearson's face in the darkness. She said, "Goodnight," and followed Dan up the steps.

It was so good to be home again! The little apartment had never been a more welcome sight. Cherry paused on the threshold as Dan snapped on the living room light.

"I was afraid we'd never get here," she said. "Oh, Dan, it was an awful trip!"

"Never mind about that now, honey. I was worried about that too, until your call came. Better get into some other clothes. Is there anything in the closet to eat? All I had was a couple of sandwiches."

Cherry discarded her rumpled frock for a warm negligee. She combed out her hair and got into comfortable slippers. When she returned to the living room the fragrant odor of coffee was in the air. Dan had a flame in the gas stove and was rummaging about a shelf that held supplies.

"There's rye bread," Cherry informed him, "and cheese and a can of sardines. Wait, you'd better let me get them—"

THEY opened the gateleg table and set out their midnight lunch. It contained all the indigestible favorites. Dan had made the coffee strong. He found old pickles and insisted on adding them to the menu. There was thick cream for the coffee and each of them drank two cups.

Cherry felt Dan's arm around her. She snuggled close. "I shouldn't have gone without you," she whispered. "I'll never do it again. Oh, Dan, you don't know how frightened I was!"

He didn't and he never would. Cherry was thinking of Pearson's astounding announcement.

Dan said easily, "Don't think about it, Cherry. It's all over now."

But was it?

They spent a lazy Sunday together. The day was divinely cool. They had a late breakfast and sat about the house reading the newspapers until the middle of the afternoon. Then Dan went out for a time and returned to take Cherry to dinner. They finished the evening with a bus ride—a treat they had not indulged in for weeks.

Three days of uneventful calm followed. The heat wave seemed to be definitely broken. Cherry did not see Max Pearson, tried not to think about him. She kept busy with housework. Dixie Shannon was away on her vacation and Pinky, the kitten, was Cherry's only companion.

On Wednesday evening she prepared a dinner that was one of Dan's favorites—pork chops stuffed with dressing, broccoli and a fruit salad. She noticed with disappointment that he did not seem to be eating.

"Is there anything wrong with the chops?" she asked.

"No. They're all right."

Cherry waited. After a moment she said, "You're not eating, Dan. What's the matter? Aren't you feeling well?"

"I'm feeling well enough," he assured her, but he pushed back his chair. "Not hungry, I guess."

"Lord, Cherry!" he went on again in a burst of impatience, "don't you get sick of this sort of life? Aren't you fed up on it?"

"Why, Dan, what do you mean?" "The same old thing over and over. Day after day! I've had enough of it. I want to get out of this town!"

The girl was horrified.

"But we can't, Dan! You don't—oh, you don't really mean what you're saying, do you?"

"Of course I mean it! What chance do I have in a town like this? I want to go to New York or Chicago. Some place where there's a little life! Where a fellow has a chance to get some place!"

Cherry said slowly, "You mean—you want to go without me?"

lowship spoke of her experiences as a nurse in the World War and later as a missionary among the near east peoples. She is a native of Austria. She narrated several interesting episodes of her work in trying to reach the masses with the Bible. Her reference to Russian Communism and its persecution of religion brought out some interesting data. She stated that Russia had been overthrown by 30,000 communists. In the United States there are now over two millions well organized and aggressive. She regarded it a real menace to America.

Lepers in America. Dr. W. M. Danner brought a very convincing message on the Cleansing of Lepers. His society is world-wide in its operations. He stated that there were 740 le

GOOD THOUGHTS

A perfect faith would lift us absolutely above fear.

George MacDonald

We want to trust Him with a fuller trust, and so at last to come to that high life where we shall "be careful for nothing; but in everything, by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let our requests be made known unto God, for that, and that alone, is peace.

Phillips Brooks

Faith is a grasping of Almighty power; The hand of man laid on the arm of God;

The grand and blessed hour in which the things impossible to me Become the possible, O Lord, through Thee.

A. E. Hamilton

So certain was Christ Jesus of the permanence of good that he was able to declare, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away"; and this, moreover, when facing the seeming failure of his own mission through his betrayal and crucifixion! Yet nothing could shake his confidence in the ultimate triumph of Truth, and in Love's power to sustain men during trials and persecutions.

The Christian Science Monitor Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee.

Insurance For Idle Impractical

Washington, July 1—(AP)—A special Senate committee which has spent months studying unemployment insurance systems reported yesterday to the Senate that "Federal unemployment insurance is 'impractical,' if not undesirable."

Coupled with this statement was the conclusion that "ultimately, at least, the states should formulate some program." It was recommended that this take the form of "compelling industries themselves to establish reserves, but not in any particular way."

The committee recommended also that the Federal government "contribute to such systems of private unemployment reserves to the extent of permitting employers who maintain them to deduct some portion, if not all, of the contributions thereto out of their income for tax purposes."
